Post Production Support

At Rocket Science, we specialise in Postproduction and understand the technology behind it. We recognise the unique environment and demanding deadlines you deal with every day. With over 2 decades of experience, Rocket Science was built alongside some of the most notable role players in the media industry, meeting their ever-growing technology needs.

Our commitment to ensuring your needs are always met means while we look after your IT Infrastructure 24\7 365 days a year, you get to focus on doing what you do best.

Our customers are able to choose from 3 service offerings to keep your Post Facility well-maintained and functioning optimally:

- Remote Response, Remote Availability best suited for small office, home office (SOHO) Post Production Facilities i.e. 1-3 Edit stations
- Standard Response, Standard Availability recommended for medium sized Post Production Facilities i.e. 3 – 10 Edit Stations with Storage and Server Infrastructure.
- High Response, High Availability recommended for customers who require high availability examples include post production facilities with more than 10 Edit stations, Live Production Post Production Facilities, as well as Post Production Facilities with more than 10 Edit Suites.

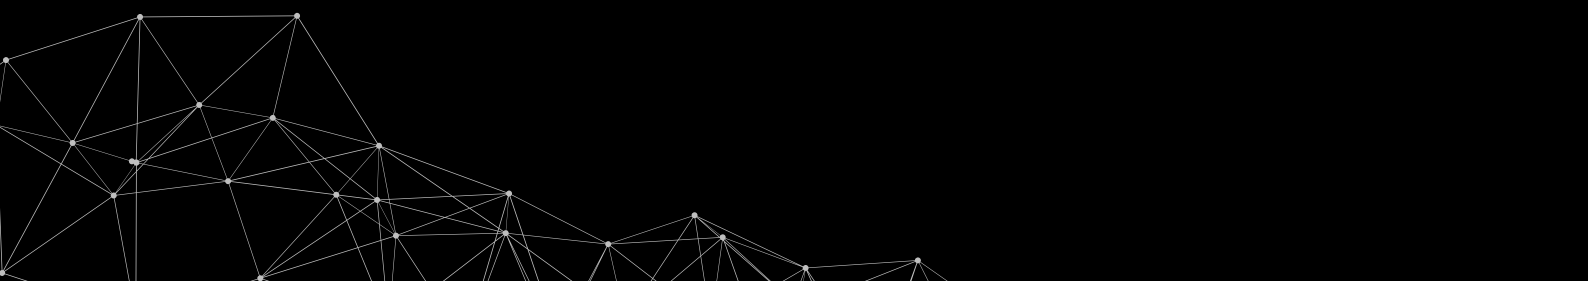

Understand exactly where you can improve your workflow.

During our onboarding phase, all new customers are given a free consultation where a full hardware and software audit is done on all of your equipment. In addition to this we will work with you to understand your workflow and where your workflow can be improved to ensure you save time and money.

Constant Monitoring costs less than having to replace your machine.

Prevention is better than cure, we proactively monitor your hardware to ensure preventative maintenance can take place.

No matter how big or small your Post facility is, Rocket Science will ensure that you are always taken care of because when it comes to customer service, you won't find a more committed team.
